

AGREEMENT TO PUBLISH A DISSERTATION

The aim of the present Agreement is to govern matters associated with the possibility of publishing dissertations written at the University of Luxembourg (UL).

Name and forename of the author (PhD student): Antonio Maria Fiscarelli

Address of the author: Via Francesco Compagna 1, 71121 Foggia, Italy

Student No: 116003721D

PhD student in (study field): Informatique

Author of the dissertation entitled: Social Network Analysis for Digital Humanities

Defended on: 17/06/2021

Reference No: PhD-FSTM-2021-036

ARTICLE 1

In this regard the author of the dissertation holds the copyright¹ thereto. If the dissertation contains results which might be exploited such as an invention, software or database, the author shall notify the UL (Legal Affairs) of those results in order to enable them to be given intellectual property protection prior to any publication and/or disclosure of the dissertation.

ARTICLE 2: Authorisation to publish the dissertation in a paper format

- Two paper copies of the dissertation shall be submitted by the author to the Office of Doctoral Studies, which shall forward them to the University of Luxembourg Library for the purposes of conservation, consultation and loan.

- One of those paper copies shall be submitted by the University of Luxembourg Library to the Luxembourg National Library in accordance with the regulations on legal deposits.

The author authorises the consultation and borrowing of his or her work by third parties at the University of Luxembourg Library and the Luxembourg National Library in accordance with the legislation and specific agreement in force with third parties.

ARTICLE 3: Authorisation to publish the dissertation in electronic format

The dissertation shall be submitted in electronic format by the author to the Office of Doctoral Studies in order to be retained on the University's internal server and the University of Luxembourg Library, which will forward a copy to the Luxembourg National Library in accordance with the regulations on legal deposits.

The author authorises the publication of the entire text of his or her work on the University of Luxembourg publications server (orbilu.uni.lu) in accordance with the legislation and specific agreements in force with third parties. He or she also authorises the publication of the entire text on the server of the Luxembourg National Library as well as any other publication tool within the context of a policy of free access to scientific documentation.

¹ Laws on Copyright dated 18 April 2001 and 18 April 2004 (cf. www.legilux.lu – Memorial A)

As a consequence, the dissertation is made freely accessible on the Internet. This publication is protected by the “Creative Commons” licence² under the terms Authorship – No Commercial Utilisation – No Modification

The author will register the bibliographical references of the dissertation in ORBi^{lu} after the defence of the dissertation. He will add the full-text and the appendices. He will define the type of access for his or her files. The author may deposit their work under either ‘Open Access’ or ‘Open Access with embargo’. For the former, the work is immediately available online. In case of the latter, the author may choose how long their work will be under limited access before becoming available openly online (as guidelines, no more than 4 years is recommended). The non-exclusive license of publication in open access ORBi^{lu} will be signed by the author when he or she deposits.

ARTICLE 4

The present Agreement only relates to dissertations of which the Dissertation Defense Committee has authorised reproduction, all corrections made. In this regard, the author certifies that the dissertation in paper and electronic format submitted to the UL and published in ORBi^{lu} is the version definitively accepted and may be published in that form.

The present Agreement does not create any obligation on the UL to make use of the authorisation given to it. Effective publication, and similarly its possible withdrawal, in no case involves any appraisal in favour of the author or third parties of the content of the work published and shall not be the ground for any liability on the part of the UL with regard to third parties.

Likewise, the author remains liable on the basis of Common Law for the content of his or her work. The author certifies that he or she has obtained from the persons and establishments concerned those authorisations necessary for the reproduction of images, audio or video files and any document appearing in his or her work of which he or she is not the owner.

The UL is entitled to modify the format of the work for the purposes of preservation and conservation, in accordance with Article 10 of the Law of 18 April 2004 on copyright.

ARTICLE 5

The author may at any time cancel the present authorisation to publish, provided he or she notifies the UL thereof by registered letter with acknowledgement of receipt.

ARTICLE 6

Authorisations to publish given to the UL are not of any exclusive nature and the author retains all other concomitant rights to publish the work which belong to him or her initially.

The present authorisation is free and non-exclusive. It is valid for the entire term of literary and artistic ownership (copyright) and for the entire world.

Signed in 4 copies in Luxembourg on

² <http://wiki.creativecommons.org/Luxembourg>

Authorship: the work may be freely used, provided that it is attributed to its author by quoting his or her name.

No Commercial Utilisation: the right holder may authorise all types of utilisation or in contrast restrict to non-commercial utilisation (commercial utilisation remaining subject to his or her authorisation).

No Modification: the right holder may continue to reserve the right to produce derivative works or in contrast authorise modifications, translations, etc.

Author's signature